If you've ever played mobile - or even Flash - games in the past, then you've probably heard of Bloons Tower Defense. The franchise, now abbreviated to Bloons TD, is one of the most popular strategy games on mobile today, with lots of different games under its belt. For those who have not played this game before, the basic premise is that there are lots of balloons trying to make their way through the map and into your base. If a certain amount of balloons are allowed to make it past your defense and into your base, then you lose. You must build monkey towers to shoot at balloons before they can get to your base. Developed by Ninja Kiwi, Bloons TD 6 adds more monkey towers, new balloon types and more upgrades to the game. It is now the most fleshed out version of the game so far. You can enjoy fighting the pesky balloons with more towers, more crazy weapons and more boosters than you've ever seen! New features of Bloons TD 6 With each subsequent release of the Bloons TD franchise, you will notice that there are ongoing upgrades and that you will always be able to make use of new towers. TD 6 is no different. The game now has more fortifications, opponents and upgrades than ever before. New towers. There are now 21 towers, each with five upgrades - up from four in the previous game. There is an Engineer Monkey, an Alchemist Monkey, and a Druid Monkey that are all new appearances. You can now fight the balloons in more ways than ever before. You can choose from three upgrade paths for all your towers, which means there are a number of different directions that you to get the optimal defense in place. New New Balloons. Of course, there are also new enemies to deal with. The mother of all balloons (MOAB) will give you a really hard time unless you have specific towers to fight the stuff with. There are also brand new purple balloons. Your strategies will need to evolve to account for these new enemies. New upgrades. You can now develop your monkey tree f knowledge with more upgrades than previous games. This allows you to unlock new towers, upgrades and bonuses that will help you out along your journey. Make sure you're always researching the right ones. Hero monkeys. You can now use one of nine hero monkeys, each with 20 unique upgrades. These can shred through balloons with ease, and you can customize their skins to make your gameplay more unique. Try them! New maps. There are 36 unique cards to play on in Bloons TD 6. Some of them even have 3D objects that will block your field of view, adding even more challenge to the game. Play through every card in the game to become the dominant monkey! How to play Bloons TD 6 For beginners, the best way to play this game is to build a variety of defenses that can take out several different types of balloon opponents. In other words, don't just build a type of tower. This may work in the first level, but you will quickly realize that there are new types of balloons all the time and they are often going to require a different approach to defeat. For example, dart shooters in the early levels are effective, but you will be much better off with guns as these darts shooters quickly become useless against even slightly armored balloons. Canons, on the other hand, can be continuously upgraded to be more efficient as the game progresses. You will also want to get some snipers and ninjas into the mix early in the game. While ninjas aren't exactly effective against your average balloon, they have incredible stopping power, making them super useful for fighting camo balloons, which you'll quickly have to face as the game progresses. Snipers are just great for picking out armored balloons from a distance, so definitely invest in some of these early in the game.
